Richmond Members Enjoy Banquet and Hear Good Specches.

The fourth annual banquet of the Ran dolph-Macon Alumni Association of Richmond at the Westmoreland Club last night was in many respects the most interesting and successful of the quartette It was attended by about thirty gentlemen, the great majority of whom were alumni and the remainder friends of the institution, love of which holds this organizaion together and adds the element of congeniality and the enthusiasm always manifested.

ganization together and adds the element of congeniality and the enthusiasm always manifested.

The dinner was beyond criticism, but the feature of the celebration was the high standard of the speeches, and notably those of the orator of the evening, Rev. William H. H. Joyce, and of Dr. A. C. Wightman, of the college faculty. The other speeches on the regular programme were made by Mr. John P. Branch, of this city; Mr. S. S. P. Patteson, of the Richmond bar, and Dr. R. E. Blackwell, president of the college. Mr. Alfred B. Williams, editor of the News Leader; Rev. J. Sydney Peters, of the Richmond Advocate, and Mr. H. D. Perkins, of The Times-Dispatch.

Those present were Rev. William E. Evans, D. D., who proved an accomplished and tactful toastmaster; Rev. W. H. H. Joyce, the chief speaker; Messrs. John P. Branch, S. S. P. Patteson, John Landstreet, J. Thompson Brown, H. Seldon Taylor, Mr. William D. Duke, Dr. F. C. Woodward, Mr. G. M. Nolley, Dr. Thomas D. Merrick, Dr. A. G. Brown, Dr. R. E. Blackwell, Professor R. B. Smithey, of the college faculty; Messrs. G. W. Warren, James J. Hickey, Rev. J. T. Mastin, W. O. Priddy, Burnett Lewis, W. S. Brown, H. D. Perkins, James F. Howison, L. McK. Judkins, Alfred B. Proceeding to the consideration of his theme, Mr. Joyce discussed in an address of twenty minutes "The College and the Times," and aroused great enthusiasm by the breadth of his treatment of the subject and his brilliant rhetoric. He said in part:

Times," and aroused great enthusiasm by the breadth of his treatment of the subject and his brilliant rhetoric. He said in part:

"Brethren—all children of the same gentle fosier-mother, bound by a common hie of grateful reflection, there are none here who are not thankful at every remembrance of her gentle ministry, the benedlection breathed upon us when she sent us forth, the impress of her firm and kindly fingers, indelibly graven into the substance of soul and character, and I have no doubt there are some present who have an additional bond of attachment to her and of sympathy for each other, by reason of the fact that at some time they have been soundly spanked by those same fair but puissant hands."

The speaker declared for the value of the small college, which he characterized as distinctly American, and though criticised with supercillious shrug by some who sit in the soats of the mighty, yet he declared that in nine cases in ten they are doing good, thorough work, and are more accurately keyed to their immediate environment than their more pretentious sisters. The time has come, said he, when the community of interest among educational institutions should be recognized; when the immense potentialites arising from such a recognition should be utilized to the best advantage, and when the vital relevance of the college to present times should be demonstrated beyond dispute.

Dr. Wightman was the next speaker, his subject being "Randolph-Macon; What It is and What It Aims to Be," and aroused great enthusiasm by his eloquent and thoughtful treatment of the theme. He resented the term small college as applied to institutions like this, and summarized the work of the college in the brain weight it had added to the world in the 700 degree graduates it had sent out, and the 3,000 or more students who received their training there. The college, said he, was no longer a luxury, but a necessity to American life. His address aroused great enthusiasm and was warmly commended.

To S. S. P. Patteson fell the task of responding to the tosst, "Women," a labor for which,
Mr. Patteson said, being a boncheor, he was

The parlors were tastefully decorated with a profusion of daisies, and the many friends of the happy couple who gatherd to wish them joy in their new life made it a bright picture, indeed. The bride was prettily attired in white ordany and carried Bride roses.

From Their Name.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BRISTOLA TENN., June 2.—The work of the Bible and Sunday school institute being conducted in connection with the annual meeting of the German Baptists was concluded to-night. The work of the comference proper will be taken up the comlog week. The standing committee is weighing the matter of changing the official name of the church. There appears to be a disposition to drop the word 'German,' as now obsolete and calculated to hinder the progress of the church in some sections. Whatever change may be made in the name it appears to be certain that the name 'Brethren' will be retained as the one feature of the name that is universally esteemed.

To-morrow at least nine special trains are due to arrive here from various parts of the country. These trains will carry an average of 500 delegates each.

Two Brothers Meet for First Time in Forty

IN PETERSBURG

Three Small Boys Narrowly Escape Drowning in River.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, No. 1102 Hull Street. More than forty years ago F. U. Moxey and John T. Moxley, prothers, each then less than fifteen years of age, separated in Petersburg, Va., the former going to his home, at Clover Hill, Chesterfield county, while the latter started for Georgia to make his fortune. To be exact, it was on the 12th day of January, 1865, that the brothers parted in the Cockade City. Until Thursday, the 25th of May, neither had seen the other since the separation.

Briefly, this is the story unfolded ay

the appearance in Manchester of Mr. John T. Moxley, a druggist by profes-sion, and a man who for a decade has sion, and a man who for a decade has lived with the people of South America. Mr. F. U. Moxley for twenty years conducted a grocery store at the corner of Fourth and Hull Streets. His son is proprietor of the store at this time. Mr. John Moxley arrived in Richmond about two weeks ago. He was on a trip to Virginia to meet the people of the State that he had always held dear. In Richmond he mot several congenial friends, who, after hearing his name, mentioned the fact that a person by the same name lived in Manchester. He became interested and immediately came to Manchester. At Seventh and Hull Streets he left the street car and walked into Welsiger's drug store and asked to be allowed to look at the city directory. The permission was granted, and the name of F. U. Moxley was found. Without saying anything to anyone, the man who had for more than forty years been supposed to be dead by his relatives walked to Fourth and Hull Streets, where the store of Mr. Moxley is located, and asked for his prother. His brother was at the door by his relatives walked to Fourin and Hull Streets, where the store of Mr. Moxley is located, and asked for his brother. His brother was at the door and replied that his name was F. U.

Moxley. "Then, Mr. Moxley, I am your broth-er," said the stranger.
For some time the Manchesterian could not believe the utterance, but was con-vinced that he was really talking to his brother whom he had last seen in Petersburg.

Mr. John Monley came from Brazil last December to Tampa, Florida. He had been in Mexico, in Cuba and in the Philippines, and when he returned last year to the United States, his first determination was to see the State in which

Exciting Experience.

* Exciting Experience.

With the tide against them and none strong enough to successfully use the oars, three small boys of the First Ward in Manchester had an experience in James River yesterday afternoon that not only frightened them, but caused much anxiety in at least three families in the city. Shortly after noon the three boys, sons of Messrs. F. U. Moxley. Charles Fisher and Mr. Harris, horrowed the boat of Mr. Fisher and started out for sport. They did not return by night, and a search was started. Mr. Fisher went several miles down the river looking for some signs of the boat, but found none. Last night, when the three families were confident that the boys had been drowned, an experienced fisherman brought them in He had found them "at sea." In the boat, unable to breast the tide and absolutely powerless in the small boat. By hard work, he succeeded in rowing to Manchester, and turning the three youngsters over to their parents.

New South Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, met last night and elected Mr. James P. Jones delegate to the Funeral Benefit Association, which convenes in Greensboro, N. C., on the 13th of June. No action was taken upon the question of increasing the assessment of the members per month for an increase in the funeral benefit fund. This matter will be disposed of fund. This matter will be disposed of next Friday night. It is generally believed that the council will instruct its delegates to vote for the increase from the fact that afterwards it will be optional with the council whether or not it will accept the $500 death benefit with the increased assessment of fifteen cents, or cling to the $250 benefit with the fifteen cents' assessment.

A False Report.

For several weeks there has been a persistent rumor through the city that the firm of Lewis Frank and Son, shirt makers, would leave Manchester and probably locate in another city. It was said that the glass factory, which will open within a few days, would use the building now occupied by Frank and Son as a warehouse, Mr. George Lewis, manager of the shirt factory, yesterday afternoon positively denied the rumor. He said that of late he has been worried by people coming to him asking whether the rumor was true or not. The proprietors of the glass factory have, so far as is known, no idea of purchasing the plant of Frank and Son, nor has Frank and Son any idea of disposing of their building.
